

About Tim Nelsen

As the Director of Development, Tim creates opportunities for individuals and organizations to provide support to programs, initiatives, and caretaking to both the properties of Wallace House and Wallace Farm. He also explores further engagement with local partnerships to expand the organization's outreach.

Tim has previously worked in development and marketing for several Iowa-based nonprofits aiming to provide community support to life-improving causes. Growing up in Okoboji, IA he saw the value of Iowa community gatherings and land-based attractions. He now lives in Earlham, IA, serving as a member of city council and the fire-department, he is appreciative of the support Iowan's kindly offer to each other. He is an outdoors enthusiast and loves any opportunity to enjoy the beautiful Iowa land with his family gardening, hiking, or on a boat.
